

We had a workshop with the theme 'Let's make eco-friendly New Year Card' by 10th graders.

Associated with their project study, they used recycled 'Seed paper' that are made with flower seeds and created their own New Year's Card. Participants learned about the environment, became more interested in something familiar.

We learned about social problem in our environment, and we cultivated the better understanding.

It was so much fun. The organizers received some advice from experts in this field, and their research was rich in content. (10th grader)
